in its 13th year of publication

Moving In With Pizazz

SPRUCING UP THE LOBBY

The sofa and chairs in the lobby will be missing for a while. They are being re-upholstered in jazzy new fabrics selected for us by Roxy Ulmsten and Todd Bowles, textile design consultants here at Convergence in studio 409.

Very soon our updated furniture will be back in place.

Next Veterans Day is November 11, 2011. As that date approaches we want to honor the veterans in The Guilford Building.

If you are a military veteran and have a few minutes to fill out a form available at the security station, you will be included in our roster of honor, which will be published in the next issue of The Guilford Building News.

FIRE INSPECTION DEBRIEFING Only a Few Violations this Year

Most offices and telecommunication facilities in The Guilford Building easily passed the annual fire inspection on September 1. Those tenants who received violations will get follow-up letters before September 30 about correcting their violations.

The Greensboro Fire Department has upped its fines substantially this year, so it pays to fix any problems that the fire marshal flagged. Re-inspection is slated for early October.

Our telecommunication companies continue to bring more fiber and new services into the building. Stay tuned for more Guilford Building telecommunication news in upcoming newsletters.
